

Figure 2 - figure supplement 1 | Genomic segments retaining homologs are highly conserved at the nucleotide level. The genomic segments found to retain homologs in Fig. 2 were aligned to their homologous regions. The average nucleotide identity of the corresponding ungapped alignment is shown here. Evolutionary rates are slightly but significantly different among lineages ( $P < 0.05$ ).